Some content being served through Amazon Cloudfront - Report Problems

May 16, 2011 - 11:33 PM - by PING

Hello!
I would like to announce that some static contents of the site are being served from S3 -> Cloudfront. Over the weekend I have been copying some redundant files and making changes so that files are being distributed across the net through CDN service (content delivery network). This should in effect make site loading alot quicker across the world (Europe gets the files from local European server, Japan gets files from Japanese servers, us west from us west, us east from us east).

PiNG

The caching has also been enabled on the server for possible quicker data distribution, but there maybe unforeseen problems. Please report any issues so we can stamp it away asap. Thanks!

There maybe possible hardware upgrade/replacement to the main webserver as we investigate further about some hanging issues.
